PITTSBURGH GAZETTE

JOHN I. SCULL. No. 56.

Tuesday, February 17, 1818.

ENLARGEMENT.

We have contemplated publishing the Gazette upon paper of super royal size with type entirely new, on an improved press, and, as heretofore, twice a week, if the plan should meet the approbation of the generality of our patrons. This would require the subscription price to be encreased from three to four dollars per annum, and that to be in all cases paid in advance.—The habits of the people and the circumstances of the times make it impossible to conduct a paper here, even with a large establishment, unless we determine to set out with a rigid adherence to this rule. With regard to the proposed enlargement, we shall give our subscribers time to consider and communicate their opinions upon the measure. If, before the first of June next, we find a sufficient number in favour of the plan, we shall then commence publishing a paper of the size and upon the terms which we have mentioned; at all events the above regulation in regard to payment must be adopted.

Our advertising custom, though necessary for our support, is already too great for our limits: and is daily encroaching upon that portion of our paper which we would wish to devote to useful and interesting matter. Pieces of any considerable length, though generally the most valuable, are excluded of course; and presently, with a paper of this size, we would be compelled to give only the most slight notices of the most important affairs. In a paper of super royal size, we could give at least twice as much general matter as we insert in this. We believe that the generality of our subscribers are too well aware of the incalculable value of their newspapers, as the common medium for the communication of universal knowledge, and the sine qua non of every politician and man of business for them to disapprove the plan and the improvement we have suggested.

Foreign Articles.

The pretended Dauphin of France

The following are some curious facts respecting the person assuming the name of the Dauphin, who is now in prison at Rouen:

"He is a young man of about four or five and thirty years of age, handsome deportment, and well informed. He has been now a prisoner two years, during which period he has been sent before two courts for trial as an impostor, and both these courts declared themselves incompetent to take cognizance of this crime. Before one of these courts he was desired by the President to uncover himself. The Dauphin haughtily replied—"Depuis quand est qu'un monarque se decouvre devant ses sujets?" He declares he can prove he is what he assumes, and demands to be taken to the Thuilleries, and when there, he will indicate places where, when young he concealed several things, which he will there name and describe most minutely; and says he, when la Reine ma mere etait en prison au Temple, she with a sharp instrument made a curious mark on the back of his neck, (which he shewed) and with the same instrument, she at the same time made one upon that of the Duchess his sister; that when young in playing with his sister, he with a knife accidentally stabbed her in the body, the mark of which remained, and he will if confronted with her, describe the very spot where it is.

The Sabotier said to be his father, being called into court, was asked if that was his son? He answered yes. The mother being called in and asked the same question, said no, and that she had never seen the man before. The daughter corroborated her mother, and said she had never seen him, and said that he was not at all like her brother.

He is not closely confined at Rouen, he has always plenty of money in his pockets: he sends for every thing of the best, and when brought in makes the jailor taste of it, for fear of being poisoned. Such as go to see him out of curiosity, style him 'Sire' and your 'Majesty'

"He says, that some years ago, not knowing how to escape out of France, he boldly told Bonaparte who he was; that he did not want to reign, and only wished for a safe escort out of the country. Bonaparte, adds he, named one of his Ministers, who is now living, and he saw me safe to the frontiers, this person is living, and he will name him, in order that he may identify him for the man he escorted out of France.

"It is strange that during the numerous interrogations he has had, he has never uttered a word to commit himself. People seem to think there is much mystery in it, for if there was no reason to suppose him what he pretends to be, he would long before this have been tried and sent to the Gallies. It is said that he has a strong party in this country.

"It has been well ascertained that the person poisoned was not the Dauphin.—The surgeon who inspected the body of the child given out for the Dauphin, asserted it was not, and for so doing he was found poisoned himself in his bed the next morning.

"This young man has travelled a great deal, and has been received at most of the Courts in Europe."

Brussels, Dec. 8.

One of our Journals has published some letters of Count Las Cassas, the first addressed to Lord Sidmouth, and a second to Lord Holland. These letters are corroborated by the following:

"All the publick papers gave at that time erroneous accounts of the reasons of my departure from Longwood. The following will establish the truth:

"My dear Count Las Cassas—My heart sensibly feels what you experience. Torn from me sixteen or seventeen days ago, you have been confined au secret, without being permitted to receive any information about me, or to communicate with any person whatever, either French or English, and even destitute of servants of your own choice.

"Your conduct at St. Helena has been like your life—honourable and without reproach: I take pleasure in telling you so. ——[Here three-fourths of the letter are wanting.]

"Your company was necessary to me; you alone could speak and understand English. How many nights have you passed with me in my illness. However I advise you, and if needful, I order you to require the governor of this Island to send you to the continent. He cannot refuse this, having no power over you, but by your voluntary consent, which has placed you under his authority. My heart will rejoice to know that you are on the way to happier countries.

"Whether you go to England, or whether you return to your country, forget the recollection of the ills which you have been made to suffer. Boast of the fidelity which you have shewn to me, and of the entire affection which I bear you.

"If you should one day see my wife and my son, salute them (embrassez-les.) for more than two years I have no news of them, either directly or indirectly. * * * * * * [Three lines are here wanting.] However, comfort yourself and console my friends. My body, it is true, is in the power of my enemies; their rage forgets nothing that can satiate their revenge; they kill me by inches, (ils me font mourir a coups d'epingle;) but providence is too just, I am sensible of it, to permit this to continue long in the midst of this consuming climate, deprived of every thing that supports life. * * * * * * [Here three lines are wanting.]

"As there is every reason to believe that you will not be permitted to come before your departure, receive my embraces, the assurances of my esteem, and of my friendship, be happy.

"Your affectionate,

"NAPOLEON."

"Longwood, Dec. 1816.

The Local authority detatained at St. Helena the original of this letter, and allowed only that part to be communicated which is found here.

UKASE.

Addressed to the Legislative Synod at Moscow, by Alexander, Emperour of Russia, dated from Moscow, October 27, 1817.

"During my late travels through the provinces, I was obliged, to my no small regret, to listen to speeches pronounced by certain of the Clergy in different parts, which contained unbecoming praises of me—praises which can only be ascribed unto God. And as I am convinced in the depth of my heart of the Christian truth, that every blessing floweth unto us thro' our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ alone, and that every man, be whom he may, without Christ, is full only of evil; therefore to ascribe unto me the glory of deeds, in which the hand of God hath been so evidently manifested before the whole world, is to give unto men that glory which belongeth unto Almighty God alone.

"I account it my duty, therefore, to forbid all such unbecoming expressions of praise, and recommend to the Holy Synod to give instructions to all the Diocesan Bishops, that they themselves, and the Clergy under them, may, on similar occasions, in future, refrain from all such expressions of praise, so disagreeable to my ears; & that they may render unto the Lord of Hosts alone, Thanksgivings for the blessings bestowed upon us, and pray for the out-pouring of his Grace upon all of us; conforming themselves in this matter to the words of Sacred Writ, which requires us to render to the King Eternal, Immortal, Invisible, the only wise God, honour glory for ever and ever.

"ALEXANDER."

PERPETUAL MOTION.

An ingenious mechanic in Linthgow, has invented a machine in which by employing magnetism as the moving power, he has realised the boasted discovery of perpetual motion thus far, that the machine, without the application of any other force than the magnetic influence, will move as long as its materials will last. Its construction is very simple. A small wooden beam, with a piece of steel at one end, is put in motion by two magnets, the one fixed about an inch above the piece of steel, the other as much below it. The magnets are covered by valves which are opened alternately by the beam itself, and the motion is communicated by a crank from the opposite end of the beam to a fly wheel. These are the principal parts; but there are some subsidiary contrivance, which could not be well understood without a diagram. Our correspondent who gave us this information, says that the machine has continued in motion for two months past without a pause.

From Kamtschatka, May 25.

As in the whole east and north east part of Siberia, it has happened also in Kamtschatka, that in the course of last winter an incredible number of bears have left the woods, frequently entered the houses of the Kamtschadales; in many places have attacked and devoured the inhabitants, nay, traces have been found of their having killed and devoured each other. At the end of the winter many bears were found who had perished with hunger. In several settlements they have killed from 2 to 300 bears. The oldest Kamtschadales do not remember ever to have seen the bears so savage and bloodthirsty. The cause of this savageness and of their hunger is, that for these two years past there has been an entire want of fish in the Kamtschatka sea; and fish, as is well known, are the chief food of the bears, which, being usually so abundant in those waters, they easily contrive to catch. A couple of shocks of an earthquake have been lately felt in the peninsula.

DESULTORY GLEANINGS.

THE LATE MR. SHERIDAN.

As Mr. Sheridan was coming up to town in one of the public coaches, for the purpose of canvassing Westminster, at the time when Paull was his opponent, he found himself in company with two Westminster electors. In the course of conversation, one of them asked the other to whom he meant to give his vote? When his friend replied, 'To Paull certainly; for though I think him but a shabby sort of a fellow, I would vote for any other rather than that rascal Sheridan! 'Do you know Sheridan?' asked the stranger.—'Not I, Sir' answered the gentleman: 'nor should I wish to know him.' The conversation dropped here; but when the party alighted to breakfast, Sheridan called aside the other gentleman, and said—'Pray who is that very agreeable friend of yours? He is one of the pleasantest fellows I ever met with, & should be glad to know his name!' 'His name is Mr T—; he is an eminent lawyer, and resides in Lincoln's-inn-fields.' Breakfast being over, the party resumed their seats in the coach; soon after which Sheridan turned the discourse to the law. 'It is' said he, 'a fine profession. Men may rise from it to the highest eminence in the State; and it gives vast scope to the display of talent; many of the most virtuous and noble characters recorded in our history have been lawyers I am sorry, however, to add, that some of the greatest rascals have been lawyers; but of all the rascals of lawyers, ever heard of, the greatest is one T——, who lives in Lincoln's-inn-fields,'—'I am Mr. T——,' said the gentleman.—'And I am Mr. Sheridan,' was the reply.—The jest was instantly seen, they shook hands, and instead of voting against the facetious orator, the lawyer exerted himself warmly in promoting his election.

Four in hand.—No man ever employed so much time, and so much property, in practical as well as speculative sporting as George, the third Earl of Orford. Among his fanciful experiments was a determination to drive four red deer (stags) in a phaeton, instead of horses, and these he had reduced to a perfect discipline for his excursions and short journies upon the road; but unfortunately, as he was one day driving to Newmarket, their ears were accidentally saluted by a pack of hounds, who soon after approaching the road in the rear, immediately caught the scent of the four in hand, and commenced a new kind of chase with 'breast high' alacrity. The novelty of this scene was rich beyond description. In vain did his Lordship exert all his charioteering skill; in vain did his well trained grooms energetically endeavor to ride before them; reins, trammels, and the weight of the carriage had no effect; off they went with the celerity of a whirlwind, and this modern Phaeton, in his electrical vibrations of fear, bid fair to experience the fate of his namesake. Luckily, however, his Lordship had been accustomed to drive his Hudibrastic set of 'fiery eyed' steeds to the Ram Inn at Newmarket, which was most happily at hand. Into the yard they suddenly bolted, to the dismay of the ostlers and stable boys, who seemed to have lost every faculty on the occasion. Here they were fortunately overpowered, and the stags, phaeton, and his Lordship, were all instantaneously huddled together in a large manger just as the hounds appeared in full cry at the gate.

PITTSBURGH.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1818.

John Tiernan, convicted at the late court of over and terminer for this county, of the murder of Patrick Campbell, is to be executed on Wednesday the 25th of March next, between the hours of ten and two o'clock. The warrant for his execution was received by sheriff Stewart on Sunday last.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

The bill for the erection of a penitentiary, on the public land adjoining the town of Allegheny opposite to Pittsburgh, with an appropriation of sixty-three sand dollars, passed to a third reading in the House of Representatives on the 6th instant.

The report of the committee appointed on petitions contesting the election of William Findlay was read, as signed by John Hopkins, chairman, and Walter Lowrie, secretary. The report is of great length, and is in favor of the validity of the election.

The report of a committee in favour of a new county out of parts of Beaver Butler and Mercer counties, was called up and rejected almost unanimously.

Mr. Hill offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the expediency of disposing of the whole amount of the stock which the state has vested in the Banks of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Philadelphia, the whole amounting to $2,187,000, and also to inquire into the expediency of vesting those funds in a state bank, to be established at the seat of government or at some other suitable and convenient place. Laid on the table.

The bill to prevent betting on elections, passed a third reading. Votes on its passage were 48 yeas 42 nays.

From the Annual Report from the Department of State to Congress respecting patents, it appears, that the number issued during the year 1817, was upwards of 170 for improvements in almost every description of machinery and manufactures

The Legislature of New-York convened at Albany, 27th ult. His Excellency gov. Clinton met both houses, and opened the session with a speech. This document occupies nearly six close columns of the New York paper.—The Commercial Advertiser, remarking on it says, "In point of both matter and manner, it is one of the most able and interesting ever delivered by a Chief Magistrate to a legislative Assembly. The topics it embraces are of the highest importance to the state: and its opinions and illustrations are clothed in a style of peculiar ease, perspicuity and elegance.

GENERAL ST. CLAIR.

The bill granting a pension ($720 a year) to major general Arthur St. Clair, passed the House of Representatives of the U. States on the 6th inst.

Mr. Tremble (on the same day) offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the demand made by the President of the United States upon the King of Spain for the liberation of Richard Meade, a citizen of the United States, confined in confinement in the Castle of Santa Catalina at Cadiz, ought to be supported and enforced by vesting the President with the authority to make reprisals in event of a failure on the part of Spain promptly to discharge the said Meade.

The resolution was laid upon the table.

Extract to the Editor of the Baltimore Patriot, dated Washington, Jan. 30.

"It is reported that advices have been received at the War Department, from Amelia Island, that a Spanish fleet has left St. Augustine, with 2,000 troops on board. Whether those troops are to be employed against the Americans at Amelia, is yet not ascertained; or whether the government of the United States intends to hold it no longer than a Spanish force sufficient to hold it is sent to occupy it, is not known out of doors."

DRAWING ROOMS.

The venerable Lady of the late President ADAMS, has addressed the following letter to the Editor of the Weekly Register:

Quincy, January 20, 1818.

"Mr. NILES—Upon taking up your register the other day, a communication respecting Drawing Rooms attracted my attention. Your correspondent must have been misinformed when he states, that there was any distinction of party made at the drawing room while I had the honor to reside there; any gentleman or lady, of every party, who chose to visit there, were received with equal civility. And from your correspondent, I have now for the first time learnt, that any person withdrew from political motives. The gentlemen of both houses of Congress received and accepted the invitations of the President to dine with him, and but one of the whole number ever so far forgot the character of a gentleman as to send an uncivil refusal.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

ABIGAIL ADAMS.

The article referred to by Mrs. Adams appeared in the National Register, and not in the Weekly Register.

There has been recently translated into English, a Turkish account of wars with Russia, by Resmi Achmed Efendi, an officer of high standing and great influence at the court of Constantinople. The historian assigns eight reasons for the bad success of the Turkish arms against Russia: of which the last is, that "the troops marched out to war when Saturn and Mars were in conjunction with the sign of Cancer."

So firmly did the Turkish Divan believe in astrology, that they attributed the old Prussian Frederick's tide of good fortune, to the help of that science. Accordingly, the Sultan Mustapha, sent Resmi Achmed to Berlin, and furnished him with private instructions to use all his eloquence to induce the king of Prussia to cede three of his most skilful astrologers to the Sultan. "This sapient message was faithfully delivered by him to Frederick; and he was informed through the medium of his interpreter, that a definitive answer would soon be given to his request. At the subsequent audience, Frederick led the Turk to a window which commanded the great square, then filled with soldiery. And at the same time that he pointed out his troops to the ambassador, he told him that his three advisers in war and peace, were Experience, Discipline, and Economy;—these, and these alone, he concluded, are my three chief astrologers; I have no others:—and this is the secret, which I beg you to impart to our good friend the Sultan Mustapha."

Con. Cour

About 200 bills have been reported in the House of Representatives of this State, of which the first following are the most public.

An act to increase the annuities and pensions of old, infirm and disabled officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and soldiers of the revolution.

[This bill originated in and passed the House of Representatives. To old soldiers and officers whose annuities and pensions do not exceed $40 a year, it grants 80 dolls. and the same extension is to take place with regard to those hereafter placed on the pension list. Others who receive a greater sum than 40 dolls. a year are to have their annuities or pensions raised to 100 per cent.]

A further supplement to an act entitled, "An act to alter the judiciary system of this Commonwealth."

[This bill originated and remains with the H. R.—and creates two additional Judges of the Supreme Court.]

Supplement to an act entitled, "an act to prevent the making, issuing, reissuing and circulating certain description of notes and tickets in the nature of bank notes, and for other purposes," &c.

[This originated and remains in the H. R.—Any unincorporated bank or association of individuals, who are liable for the payment of their notes, can compel payment of notes given to them. They are compelled to receive their own notes in payment.]

An act concerning the recording of Mortgages.

[This originated and remains in the H. R. and is to specify the time within which deeds and mortgages shall be acknowledged and proved and recorded, after the date thereof.]

An act to compel assignees to settle their accounts and for other purposes

(This originated and remains in the H. R.—and by it assignees are liable, one year after their appointment, to be cited by the court of common pleas to settle their accounts.)

An act providing that the person of a debtor shall not be liable to imprisonment for debt, after delivering up his estate for the benefit of his creditors, unless he hath been guilty of fraud or embezzlement.

(Originated in the H. R. and remains there. This is a long bill, and its provisions are indicated in the title.) Chron.

Good.—The Legislature of Vermont has passed a law imposing a fine of from one to seven dollars, for passing a bill of any bank not payable in specie.

The Hon. Mr. Rush, our minister to the Court of St. James, arrived at Portsmouth on the 16th of December, and at London on the 18th. "His Excellency, with his family and suit," says a London paper, "came over in the American ship of war Franklin, of 74 guns, the first of that class that has been seen in a British port, bearing the broad pendant of Commodore Stuart, and commanded by Captain Ballard. This ship is allowed to be the finest vessel of her class ever built in America. Her burthen is 2300 tons. She will proceed, in a few days, to the Mediterranean, to join the American squadron in that sea.

It had been very stormy on the coast of England and Ireland; a number of vessels had been shipwrecked, and a part of their crews perished. The Russian squadron, consisting of six sail of the line and two frigates, had reached Spithead.

At Brest a dreadful storm had been felt for two days and two nights. An English transport from London was lost, with 240 passengers, near Pontusval.

The fortunate youth who it was reported in the London papers had succeeded to a princely estate, turns out to be an impostor. Miss M'Evoy, who could see at the ends of her fingers, also turns out to be an impostor. Miss Carraboo's secret movements in the United States, are also noticed in the London papers.

Accounts from Cadiz of the 17th November, stated that the Russian Ambassador had been there some days, waiting for the Russian squadron, which had been ceded to Spain, upon conditions which remained unknown. To this squadron was to be added two ships of the line and two frigates, the equipment of which was nearly completed. Besides the troops which were ready to embark on board of them, three or four hundred officers had solicited to accompany the expedition, to serve as volunteers, till they can be employed in the South American possessions.

From the Dublin Post.

TYPHUS FEVER.

Sir—Your being a friend to the Public, and to do away the evil now so malignant, a simple prescription is here inserted to abate the virulence at present raging through the kingdom. Take two gallons of salt water—if it is not convenient, take fresh; but if it is salt water, it will not require any alkaline. Fresh water, two gallons. Epsom Salts, four ounces; Tar half a pound—combine those articles in a crock, stir the ingredients whenever it is used, and a tumbler taken, as occasion requires will extirpate the malady.

Successful and novel speculation.

We have it from good authority, that a gentleman in New-York shipped 15,000 bbls. of apples to Europe last fall; and that they sold at Liverpool at an average price of three guineas per bbl.—Albany Argus.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

JOHN ANDERSON, MY JO.

John Anderson my Jo John,
What mickle sport ye make,
'Tis equal to a christ'ning, John,
A wedding or a wake.
'Twad gie me unco pleasure, John,
To view frae top to toe,
The man they talk so much about,
John Anderson my jo.

John Anderson my jo John,
Why came ye frae the north,
To vex yon congress baim, John,
And draw his vengeance forth;
Why seek to buy a member, John
And fix his price so low—
Ye're little up to congressmen,
John Anderson my jo.

In bus'ness o' intrigue, John,
Wha wad 'na go astray,
Must build upon the stane, John,
And not upon the Clay;
They say a tongue that's silent John,
A prudent head does show;
And sic a tongue I know wha ha'nt
John Anderson my jo.

The folks that hae least grace, John,
Will make professions fair,
A' talk ye still will get John,
But little cider there;
And sic a mon as this, John,
To congress aft will go;
The divil to his ane is gude,
John Anderson my jo.

They've made a die'lish noise John,
About yon bag o' gold,
And said full mony things, John,
They'd better left untold;
In spite of a' their blathering, John,
'Twas nothing but a show,
And a' they said, and a' they sung,
Was but —— our jo.

Then hie ye to your hame John,
Amang the western woods,
And when ye neist to market come,
Be sure ye bring the goods;
No wise man e'er will spurn ye John,
When ance the stuff ye show,
Then blessings on your frosty pow
John Anderson, my jo.

CAJIPUT OIL.

An East India cure for the Rheumatism.

The essential Oil of the Cajiput Tree a medicine universally esteemed among the East Indians as a safe and certain cure for the Rheumatism, also, for bruises, sprains, fresh cuts, &c. &c.

THE above valuable medicine has but lately been introduced into Europe, in consequence of the tree from which it is produced, yielding its essential oil but in small quantities, and this chiefly monopolized by the government, owing to the great virtue it was found to possess in the cure of the rheumatisms, a disease which the people of that country are particularly subject to: the proprietor, however, receiving information of its virtues in a letter from his friend Mr. Jenkins, of the honorable East India company has procured through him, at considerable expense, a regular supply, and wishing to extend the benefits as well to the poor as to the rich, has divided the original packages and put it up in bottles made for the purpose, with directions round each bottle, signed in the proprietors own hand writing.
